DIRECT CARE PRACTICE

The Direct Care Practice Certificate Program trains practitioners to provide direct service and support to individuals, families and groups in the community. In this 18 credit program, students learn multiple roles of direct care workers in public and private sectors.

Through academic courses and a practicum provided at a community organization, the course offers tangible ways to gain confidence and competence in specific skill areas identified by potential employers and codified by national performance standards. Skills obtained in the Direct Care Practice program can be applied to many populations. Graduates of the program will have skills that are in use in virtually any human services setting. The program incorporates skill standards established on a nationwide basis through the Community Support Skills Standards Project, thereby ensuring consistency in direct care service.

Employee Potential

Development of this program was prompted by requests from community agencies to meet their emerging employment needs for trained direct support professionals. The demand for people to fill these positions continues to grow.

The direct support professional may work in child care centers, group homes for individuals with intellectual and/or developmental disabilities, day treatment programs for persons with mental illness, residential treatment facilities, elder-care and respite programs, foster care agencies, jails and alternative correction programs, short- and long-term rehabilitation centers, crisis centers, day habilitation programs, assisted living/skilled nursing facilities, sheltered workshops, and other human service settings.

With additional education and/or work experience, graduates of the program will be qualified for positions of increased scope and responsibility at these facilities.

HUMAN SERVICES A.A.S. - ASSOCIATE IN APPLIED SCIENCE DEGREE PROGRAM (CAREER-ORIENTED)

Program Description

Students who complete this program earn an Associate in Applied Science degree as well as the certificate in Direct Care Practice. The program is sufficiently comprehensive to qualify graduates for a variety of entry-level positions in public and private sector human service agencies. Depending on personal interests and career plans, students in this program may elect specialized courses and supervised field work in the areas of family and children's services, developmental disabilities, mental health treatment, crisis intervention, and gerontology.

Employment Potential

Successful graduates of the program are qualified for such positions as case aide in family and children's services, probation assistant, income eligibility examiner, teacher's aide, and child care worker in residential facilities. Graduates may also assist in nursery schools, child and adult daycare centers, and after-school programs. Other possible positions may be as group leaders and recreational counselors in mental health agencies, elder care, family planning, HIV and AIDS prevention services, and residential treatment programs for youth.

Graduates of this program who then earn a baccalaureate or higher degree will be qualified for positions of increased scope and responsibility, including supervisory and administrative positions in such fields as social work, counseling, education, and mental health.
